TWO LITTLE TOPERS

They Were Sent to a Saloon For Beer.

EACH HAD A GOOD DRINK

Before the Stuff Was Taken Home—A Practice Which Cannot Be Too Severely Condemned—It Has Grown to Alarming Proportions.

Two little girls, drinking with glee from a pitcher of beer, was one of the sights seen in an alley off Second street, last Saturday night.

The children were not more than eight years old, and their poor and scanty clothing showed plainly what sacrifices had been made to keep a drunken father or mother filled with the stuff they were sent to buy. It was after 9 o'clock when they tripped along Second street, one carrying an old pitcher. A piece of money jingled in the bottom of the vessel, and attracted the attention of a well known resident who wondered what they could want on the street at that late hour. He followed them until they came to a saloon, and saw them enter. Not desiring to follow, he remained on the outside, and was rewarded in a few minutes by seeing the children appear. The pitcher was well filled with beer, and as they trudged homeward they chatted and laughed in glee. When they reached an alley he was not surprised to see them enter, but he was dumbfounded to observe one of the children lift the pitcher to her lips and drink long of its contents. The other grew impatient, and demanded her share, and got it. After both had taken what they wanted they emerged from the alley and continued their journey, a journey that would probably end in some miserable home where squalor and poverty sat side by side with drunkenness and kindred vices.

"This thing should be stopped," said the gentleman, after relating the incident. "Those little girls should have been at home in bed, or at least studying their Sunday school lesson. But it's precious little Sunday they ever get. Perhaps their knowledge of Sunday goes no farther than that it is the one day when they can't enter the front door of the saloon. I can't understand why the authorities don't put a stop to this practice of selling beer to children. It has grown these last few years to alarming proportions."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The Sunday Services Were Intensely Interesting.

Some time ago the NEWS REVIEW made mention of the heroic efforts inaugurated by pastor and people of the First M. E. church of East Liverpool, looking to the wiping out of the church debt, in the sum of $5,600. This effort has attracted much attention in the city, and the plucky members of the congregation are being warmly commended, more particularly as the indications now are, under the blessing of Providence, that the debt will be utterly wiped out, in SPOT CASH, on the night of December 6, when the final grand rally is to be made. The congregations yesterday were very large, notably at the night service, when auditorium and galleries were filled with deeply attentive listeners. Reverend Huston spoke last night of the gospel by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, and thrilled his hearers with his utterances on the "Gospel by You," by your everyday life; by your walk and conversation; by your speech and actions; by your fair dealing and honest actions in business life; living epistles of Christianity and righteousness, seen and read by your friends and acquaintances in the community in which you live; by your actions when away from home, in a far distant city, where peculiarly strong temptations surround you. No need to tell men you are a Christian. No need to wear peculiar cut of clothing. No need to proclaim your profession from the housetop. Simply let your life be patterned, as near as you can, after that of the blessed Jesus, and men will recognize the fact that you are, in deed and in truth, a follower of the meek and lowly Nazarene. The sermon was spoken of in warm terms of praise by many of those who had the pleasure of hearing it, and the pastor has the assurance of having sown good seed in good ground.

DIED IN NEWBURG.

Richard Swetnam Passed Away at the Asylum.

Richard Swetnam, of this city, died in Newburg asylum at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Organic disease of the brain was the cause of death. Deceased had been suffering for some time, and was taken to the asylum for treatment two weeks ago. He steadily grew worse, and last Saturday his wife was summoned to his side. She remained until the end. The remains arrived here at noon, and were taken to the late residence in Huston addition. The funeral will be in charge of the Sons of St. George, and will take place from St. Stephen's church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Charles O'Meara will officiate. Interment will be in Riverview. Deceased was 42 years of age, and leaves a wife and four children. He lived in East Liverpool 13 years, and was employed as warehouseman at the Thompson pottery.

TRIED TO TAKE HIS LIFE

Jacob Barnhart Drank a Little Chloroform.

HIS WIFE WANTED TO STOP HIM

But He Overpowered Her, and Was Soon Unconscious—Saved by a Passing Doctor. Whisky and Domestic Trouble Given as the Cause.

Jacob Barnhart did his best to end his life yesterday afternoon, but his wife called a doctor and he was saved, much against his will.

Barnhart is a cooper, and lives with his wife in a shanty boat at the foot of Jefferson street. Yesterday afternoon he entered the room where his wife and Mrs. Elizabeth Knapp were seated, and calmly informed them that he was about to swallow all the chloroform in the bottle he had in his hand. The women endeavored to change his determination, and when argument was of no avail struggled physically with him, but Barnhart won and emptied the bottle. He was soon unconscious, and Doctor Norris, who happened to be calling in that vicinity, was summoned. He administered an antidote, and remained until the man was out of danger. Later in the afternoon Doctor Laughlin was summoned.

A reporter called at the Barnhart boat this morning, but Mrs. Barnhart refused to talk. Her husband was able to sit in a chair, but looked as though he had had a close call. The wife said her husband would give no reason for attempting his life. Neighbors stated that the man had been drinking, and this with some domestic difficulty was the cause. If inflammation does not appear Barnhart will recover.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS.

Merchants and Wide Awake Business Men Will Make Note.

A lazy man is never a success. This rule holds good in newspaper work, as in all other branches of business. Drive your work—don't let it drive you. Hustle after that which you desire to secure. So-called newspaper men of East Liverpool have been boasting, to some of our merchants, that they (the would-be journalists and managers) have been fixing up affairs in great shape, and that they are now about in the proper condition to dictate to said business men relative to advertising, and that the newspaper (?) man will no longer be compelled to solicit advertisements, but that the business man will be compelled to seek the newspaper (?) office and earnestly plead to be given a desirable location in the columns of said newspaper (?).

Give all such boosters, bluffers and gaffers the laugh, oh ye business men of East Liverpool. Their very blatant boasting is done on the principle of the boy whistling loudly as he passes a lonely spot, in order to keep his courage up.

The NEWS REVIEW has had and is still having its full share of prosperity and business success. It is still eagerly looking for remunerative advertising, however, and its manager stands ready, day or night, in case of necessity, to respond to your calls in this line, and will not compel, or force you, to come to the office in the First National Bank building, but will with pleasure visit your place of business and attend to your wants or desires in this line. Call us up by telephone, when you want to advertise, and note the alacrity with which we respond to all such pleasing invitations.

ACCEPTED.

Eclipse Will Play Against Wellsville Thanksgiving Afternoon.

To the Crescent football team, Wellsville, O.:

In answer to your challenge issued to us to play on Thanksgiving day, we will say that we have never considered ourselves your superiors, and have never refused to give you games because we did not consider you in our class or standing as a team, but we have invariably been scheduled to play other teams on dates that you have requested games, and for this reason and none other have we refused to arrange a game with you.

Sometime ago we arranged to play the Wilkinsburg Athletic club of Wilkinsburg, Pa., on the date which you have challenged us for, and upon receipt of your challenge we immediately communicated with the Wilkinsburg team, with reference to canceling the game scheduled for that date, and which we have only succeeded in doing after considerable trouble and expense to ourselves.

We therefore accept your challenge to play on Thanksgiving day, with every condition named therein, except that the winner take the entire gate receipts, but if you are not willing to play on these conditions we will accept your proposition—to wit: that the winner take 80 and the loser 20 per cent of the net gate receipts.

In addition, we are willing to play for any amount of money you may desire to name.

ECLIPSE RUGBY FOOTBALL TEAM.

Manager.

OVER A HILL.

William Garvey Mashed His Elbow While Playing.

Will Garvey, a Jethro youth not more than a dozen years of age, fell off the railroad fill below the West End yesterday afternoon, and sustained injuries which will make his arm stiff.

Garvey, with a number of companions, was playing along the railroad. A youngster named Bratt was running along the top of the fill with Garvey when they fell, and the latter rolled over the hill. He did not have far to go, but at the bottom was a pile of furnace slag, and he rolled into this, his whole weight going on his left arm. He was badly hurt, and his companions, securing help, brought him to the city. Physicians discovered the boy's elbow was shattered. The arm will never again be of much use to him. The injury was repaired as well as possible, and the boy taken home.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

A Tribute to the Late Miss Harriet Curry.

Services in memory of the late Miss Harriet Curry were conducted at the West End chapel, yesterday afternoon. Touching addresses were made by Rev. W. E. Sloane, W. A. Hill, W. V. Harris, James Oak and Daniel McLane, each speaker recalling the splendid qualities of Miss Curry, who taught in the mission, founded by her mother, for eight or nine years. Miss Curry was an earnest worker at the mission, and to her efforts is much of the success of that excellent institution due.

AN IRREGULARITY.

A Milkman Charges Another Dealer Seriously.

A milkman, who drives to the city very early each morning, complains that a rival steals the bottles of milk he leaves at the houses of his customers. A number have disappeared, and it was a long time before the milkman could get a clue. The other morning one of his customers arose earlier than usual, and saw a man in the act of taking the milk. The aggrieved party is inclined to prosecute.

THE COUNTY'S POOR.

More Than a Hundred Are Now at the Infirmary.

There are at present 103 persons in the infirmary, and with few exceptions they are in good health. Two insane persons are being cared for until they can be taken to Newburg. John Stutler, a lunatic from Salem, believes he is the president, and at times becomes violent. He thinks his sole mission is to exterminate his subjects. He is closely watched.

A BAD CUT.

An Artery Severed in Russell Heddleson's Hand.

Russell Heddleson, while cutting cheese Saturday evening, met with a painful accident. His hand slipped over the end of the knife, and an artery under the thumb was severed. The wound bled profusely and he at once went to a physician, where the flow of blood was stopped and several stitches closed the wound.

Only a Plain Drunk.

Officer Meador found William Anderson lying in the gutter on Kossuth street, yesterday afternoon, hopelessly drunk. The wagon was called and the sleeper conveyed to city hall. This morning Anderson told the mayor he had no recollections of that slumber. He was fined $6.75.

Thirty-Five Are Willing.

The projectors of the naval reserve have secured 35 people who are willing to join the company, but will endeavor to obtain the full list of 80 members before sending to Columbus for a mustering officer.

Home From Canada.

Thomas Manton, of Toronto, Canada, has returned to this city and taken up a position at the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles pottery.

GOOD REASONS GIVEN

For the Sale of a Municipal Light Plant.

BETTER LIGHT IN PRIVATE HANDS

It Can Be Managed More Economically and to Greater Advantage—The People of Brainerd, Minn., Have Had Enough Municipal Ownership.

In view of the question to be settled by council tomorrow evening the article which follows is timely. It is taken from the Electrical Engineer, and gives the sentiment of people who have tried the experiment of municipal ownership under the most favorable circumstances. The Engineer says:

"The Brainerd, Minn., newspapers publish a notice of a special election to be held in that city on Dec. 17 to vote on the question of the city's selling its electric light plant to private parties. It is all the more remarkable, as Brainerd has a fine water power, and the city has paid nothing for the use of the power to run its dynamo. The report of the special committee of the common council on this subject says:

"We respectfully recommend that the question of the sale of the plant be submitted to a vote of the electors of the city. The proposition meets with our approval. Our reasons are as follows:

"First—The city will receive much more for the plant than it is really worth, and at the same time be relieved of a large indebtedness. (The city assumed $40,000 of bonds on buying the plant, and issued $20,000 more for improvements. The proposition to sell is for the parties buying to assume and pay these bonds—i. e., $60,000.)

"Second—If the plant is not sold the city must in a short time expend large sums of money to make it serviceable.

"Third—The ownership of the plant by the city has not proven profitable to the city, and, without criticising anybody, we must say the service has been poor and not entirely satisfactory.

"Fourth—We may be reasonably certain that we shall get better service if the plant is sold.

"Fifth—It has been the policy of this city, as well as of all progressive cities, to encourage capital within reasonable bounds, and those who are willing to employ it in building up such industries as will be beneficial to the communities in which they operate, and by transferring this plant to the said company we are of the opinion that the city will not only get rid of this large indebtedness, but will also show that we as a community are willing to extend a helping hand to those who are trying to build up our city."

THE HENRY GANG RECALLED

By a Divorce Granted in Common Pleas Court.

LISBON, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Judge Smith opened court long enough this morning to give Iva Courtney a divorce from her husband, Clarence Courtney, on the ground of cruelty, drunkenness and neglect. Courtney will be remembered as a member of the Henry gang who infested West township a few years ago. He was arrested in Canton, and was about to be returned to this county for trial when he escaped from jail. Nothing was ever heard of him afterward.

Deputy Supplee today received information from the superintendent of the Chicago & Neterville Stone company, which establishes the identity of the Teegarden suicide. His name was Jano Krizo, and he had started from Neterville to visit a daughter at Benville, W. Va. Why he took his life, and how he got to Teegarden are, of course, not explained. He leaves a wife in the old county.

SURPRISED THEIR FRIENDS.

Professor Watters and Miss Reed Were Married.

Prof. W. J. Watters and Miss Mary Grace Reed surprised their friends on Saturday evening by being married in Ferguson & Hill hall.

They gave a recital that evening, and the invited guests were not aware of the arrangements for a wedding. After the last number of the program had been heard and applauded Professor Watters called Miss Clara Chapman to the piano, and walked to the rear of the hall. Still the guests did not understand, but when the beautiful wedding march came from the piano they knew what was about to take place. The contracting parties then walked to the front of the hall where the ceremony was performed by Rev. H. W. Lowry, of the Presbyterian church of Wellsville. The bride was arrayed in spotless white and the groom wore conventional black. They received the hearty congratulations of their friends.

TWO LITTLE TOPERS

They Were Sent to a Saloon
For Beer.

EACH HAD A GOOD DRINK

Two little girls, drinking with glee from a pitcher of beer, was one of the sights seen in an alley off Second street, last Saturday night.

The children were not more than eight years old, and their poor and scanty clothing showed plainly what sacrifices had been made to keep a drunken father or mother filled with the stuff they were sent to buy. It was after 9 o'clock when they tripped along Second street, one carrying an old pitcher. A piece of money jingled in the bottom of the vessel, and attracted the attention of a well known resident who wondered what they could want on the street at that late hour. He followed them until they came to a saloon, and saw them enter. Not desiring to follow, he remained on the outside, and was rewarded in a few minutes by seeing the children appear. The pitcher was well filled with beer, and as they trudged homeward they chatted and laughed in glee. When they reached an alley he was not surprised to see them enter, but he was dumbfounded to observe one of the children lift the pitcher to her lips and drink long of its contents. The other grew impatient, and demanded her share, and got it. After both had taken what they wanted they emerged from the alley and continued their journey, a journey that would probably end in some miserable home where squalor and poverty sat side by side with drunkenness and kindred vices.

"This thing should be stopped," said the gentleman, after relating the incident. "Those little girls should have been at home in bed, or at least studying their Sunday school lesson. But it's precious little Sunday they ever get. Perhaps their knowledge of Sunday goes no farther than that it is the one day when they can't enter the front door of the saloon. I can't understand why the authorities don't put a stop to this practice of selling beer to children. It has grown these last few years to alarming proportions."

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The Sunday Services Were Intensely Interesting.

Some time ago the NEWS REVIEW made mention of the heroic efforts inaugurated by pastor and people of the First M. E. church of East Liverpool, looking to the wiping out of the church debt, in the sum of $5,600. This effort has attracted much attention in the city, and the plucky members of the congregation are being warmly commended, more particularly as the indications now are, under the blessing of Providence, that the debt will be utterly wiped out, in SPOT CASH, on the night of December 6, when the final grand rally is to be made. The congregations yesterday were very large, notably at the night service, when auditorium and galleries were filled with deeply attentive listeners. Reverend Huston spoke last night of the gospel by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, but thrilled his hearers with his utterances on the "Gospel by You," by your everyday life; by your walk and conversation; by your speech and actions; by your fair dealing and honest actions in business life; living epistles of Christianity and righteousness, seen and read by your friends and acquaintances in the community in which you live; by your actions when away from home, in a far distant city, where peculiarly strong temptations surround you. No need to tell men you are a Christian. No need to wear peculiar cut of clothing. No need to proclaim your profession from the housetop. Simply let your life be patterned, as near as you can, after that of the blessed Jesus, and men will recognize the fact that you are, in deed and in truth, a follower of the meek and lowly Nazarene. The sermon was spoken of in warm terms of praise by many of those who heard the pleasure of hearing it, and the pastor has the assurance of having sown good seed in good ground.

DIED IN NEWBURG.

Richard Swetnam Passed Away at the Asylum.

Richard Swetnam, of this city, died in Newburg asylum at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. Organic disease of the brain was the cause of death. Deceased had been suffering for some time, and was taken to the asylum for treatment two weeks ago. He steadily grew worse, and last Saturday his wife was summoned to his side. She remained until the end. The remains arrived here at noon, and were taken to the late residence in Huston addition. The funeral will be in charge of the Sons of St. George, and will take place from St. Stephen's church Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Charles O'Meara will officiate. Interment will be in Riverview. Deceased was 42 years of age, and leaves a wife and four children. He lived in East Liverpool 13 years, and was employed as warehouseman at the Thompson pottery.

GOT AN INJUNCTION.

But the Ohio Valley Company Must File a Bond.

Judge J. R. Paull, of Wheeling, Saturday afternoon granted the Ohio Valley Gas company a temporary injunction against Thomas Stevenson restraining him from obstructing their workmen while lifting pipe lines on his farm. The company are compelled to furnish a bond of $500, and the injunction does not take effect until the bond is filed. Judge Melvin, of Wheeling, and J. R. Doneho, of New Cumberland, represented the plaintiffs, and A. W. Stevenson the defense. On next Saturday Judge Paull will hold a special session to hear arguments whether the injunction shall be made permanent.

TOADIX WENT HOME.

He Found It Was Nothing but a Joke.

Toadix Carey was the victim of a joke last Saturday afternoon. He was at the matinee at the Grand when several of his friends hired a small boy to take a note to the stage, and in a few minutes it was announced that Mr. Carey was wanted at home instantly. The big first baseman caught up his hat, and was soon at home. The jokers followed, but could not keep pace with his feverish haste, and met him as he was returning. He appreciated the joke, and laughed with his friends who knew how the publicity would confuse the modest Toadix.

OLD HORSES

Will Virtually Pay For Their Own Funerals.

Humane Agent Lloyd has at last found a way to dispose of old horses. For several days he has been on the trail of Bill Farmer who had in his collection a pair of horses long since past the age of usefulness. Farmer was found, but said he had turned his horses over to two men who had promised to bury them for their skins. The agent lost no time in finding the men, and arranging with them to bury all the worthless horses in town for their hides. The society can now order the execution of old animals.

PLAYING WITH THE PUBLIC.

A Precious Pair Who Have Been Making Money.

Two women, advertising themselves as being able to look into the past and future of every one who are so foolish as to cross their palms with a fat silver fee, have been playing their game at a leading hotel of the city for several weeks. Several parties have investigated the pair, and find them the usual imposters, and their claims amounting to nothing. It is said they have been doing a good business, and have gathered in a neat little pile of silver on the strength of their claims.

THE BROTHERHOOD FAIR.

It Will Be Held in the Rink and Will Last a Week.

The executive committee of the Brotherhood decided last Saturday evening to hold a fair at the rink from Dec. 23 to 29. A handsome gold watch will be the basis of a contest between two prominent potters, and other articles will bring out the money collecting qualifications of several ladies. Each local will have a booth, and a musical program will be passed through each evening. It is intended to make the fair the largest of its kind ever held in the city.

The River Is Rising.

The river is rising. The Sunday boats carried large quantities of game and poultry. The Ben Hur passed up soon after noon. The Keystone will be down this evening. The new packet, Argand, started on its initial trip today, and is due here tomorrow from Parkersburg.

Farmer Complains.

Bill Farmer called on Chief Johnson this morning, and complained at great length of the wickedness of some people who annoy him. His dogs are safe, he thinks, because they have grown so fat they cannot easily be carried away.

ACCEPTED.

Eclipse Will Play Against Wellsville Thanksgiving Afternoon.

To the Crescent football team, Wellsville, O.: In answer to your challenge issued to us to play on Thanksgiving day, we will say that we have never considered ourselves your superiors, and have never refused to give you games because we did not consider you in our class or standing as a team, but we have invariably been scheduled to play other teams on dates that you have requested games, and for this reason and none other have we refused to arrange a game with you.

Sometime ago we arranged to play the Wilkinsburg Athletic club of Wilkinsburg, Pa., on the date which you have challenged us for, and upon receipt of your challenge we immediately communicated with the Wilkinsburg team, with reference to canceling the game scheduled for that date, and which we have only succeeded in doing after considerable trouble and expense to ourselves.

We therefore accept your challenge to play on Thanksgiving day, with every condition named therein, except that the winner take the entire gate receipts, but if you are not willing to play on these conditions we will accept your proposition—to wit: that the winner take 80 and the loser 20 per cent of the net gate receipts.

In addition, we are willing to play for any amount of money you may desire to name.

OVER A HILL.

William Garvey Mashed His Elbow While Playing.

Will Garvey, a Jethro youth not more than a dozen years of age, fell off the railroad fill below the West End yesterday afternoon, and sustained injuries which will make his arm stiff.

Garvey, with a number of companions, was playing along the railroad. A youngster named Bratt was running along the top of the fill with Garvey when they fell, and the latter rolled over the hill. He did not have far to go, but at the bottom was a pile of furnace slag, and he rolled into this, his whole weight going on his left arm. He was badly hurt, and his companions, securing help, brought him to the city. Physicians discovered the boy's elbow was shattered. The arm will never again be of much use to him. The injury was repaired as well as possible, and the boy taken home.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

A Tribute to the Late Miss Harriet Curry.

Services in memory of the late Miss Harriet Curry were conducted at the West End chapel, yesterday afternoon. Touching addresses were made by Rev. W. E. Sloane, W. A. Hill, W. V. Harris, James Deak and Daniel McLane, each speaker recalling the splendid qualities of Miss Curry, who taught in the mission, founded by her mother, for eight or nine years. Miss Curry was an earnest worker at the mission, and to her efforts is much of the success of that excellent institution due.

AN IRREGULARITY.

A Milkman Charges Another Dealer Seriously.

A milkman, who drives to the city very early each morning, complains that a rival steals the bottles of milk he leaves at the houses of his customers. A number have disappeared, and it was a long time before the milkman could get a clue. The other morning one of his customers arose earlier than usual, and saw a man in the act of taking the milk. The aggrieved party is inclined to prosecute.

THE COUNTY'S POOR.

More Than a Hundred Are Now at the Infirmary.

There are at present 103 persons in the infirmary, and with few exceptions they are in good health. Two insane persons are being cared for until they can be taken to Newburg. John Stutler, a lunatic from Salem, believes he is the president, and at times becomes violent. He thinks his sole mission is to exterminate his subjects. He is closely watched.

A BAD CUT.

An Artery Severed in Russell Heddleson's Hand.

Russell Heddleson, while cutting cheese Saturday evening, met with a painful accident. His hand, and artery under the thumb was severed. The wound bled profusely and he at once went to a physician, where the flow of blood was stopped and several stitches closed the wound.

Only a Plain Drunk.

Officer Meador found William Anderson lying in the gutter on Kossuth street, yesterday afternoon, hopelessly drunk. The wagon was called and the sleeper conveyed to city hall. This morning Anderson told the mayor he had no recollections of that slumber. He was fined $6.75.

GOOD REASONS GIVEN

For the Sale of a Municipal Light Plant.

BETTER LIGHT IN PRIVATE HANDS

It Can Be Managed More Economically and to Greater Advantage—The People of Brainerd, Minn., Have Had Enough Municipal Ownership.

In view of the question to be settled by council tomorrow evening the article which follows is timely. It is taken from the Electrical Engineer, and gives the sentiment of people who have tried the experiment of municipal ownership under the most favorable circumstances. The Engineer says:

"The Brainerd, Minn., newspapers publish a notice of a special election to be held in that city on Dec. 17 to vote on the question of the city's selling its electric light plant to private parties. It is all the more remarkable, as Brainerd has a fine water power, and the city has paid nothing for the use of the power to run its dynamos. The report of the special committee of the common council on this subject says:

"We respectfully recommend that the question of the sale of the plant be submitted to a vote of the electors of the city. The proposition meets with our approval. Our reasons are as follows:

"First—The city will receive much more for the plant than it is really worth, and at the same time be relieved of a large indebtedness. (The city assumed $40,000 of bonds on buying the plant, and issued $20,000 more for improvements. The proposition to sell is for the parties buying to assume and pay these bonds—i. e., $60,000.)

"Second—If the plant is not sold the city must in a short time expend large sums of money to make it serviceable.

"Third—The ownership of the plant by the city has not proven profitable to the city, and, without criticising anybody, we must say the service has been poor and not entirely satisfactory.

"Fourth—We may be reasonably certain that we shall get better service if the plant is sold.

"Fifth—It has been the policy of this city, as well as of all progressive cities, to encourage capital within reasonable bounds, and those who are willing to employ it in building up such industries as will be beneficial to the communities in which they operate, and by transferring this plant to the said company we are of the opinion that the city will not only get rid of this large indebtedness, but will also show that we as a community are willing to extend a helping hand to those who are trying to build up our city."

THE HENRY GANG RECALLED

By a Divorce Granted in Common Pleas Court.

Lisbon, Nov. 23.—[Special.]—Judge Smith opened court long enough this morning to give Iva Courtney a divorce from her husband, Clarence Courtney, on the ground of cruelty, drunkenness and neglect. Courtney will be remembered as a member of the Henry gang who infested West township a few years ago. He was arrested in Canton, and was about to be returned to this county for trial when he escaped from jail. Nothing was ever heard of him afterward.

Deputy Supplee today received information from the superintendent of the Chicago & Neterville Stone company, which establishes the identity of the Teegarden suicide. His name was Jano Krizzo, and he had started from Neterville to visit a daughter at Bensville, W. Va. Why he took his life, and how he got to Teegarden are, of course, not explained. He leaves a wife in the old country.

SURPRISED THEIR FRIENDS.

Professor Watters and Miss Reed Were Married.

Prof. W. J. Watters and Miss Mary Grace Reed surprised their friends on Saturday evening by being married in Ferguson & Hill hall.

They gave a recital that evening, and the invited guests were not aware of the arrangements for a wedding. After the last number of the program had been heard and applauded Professor Watters called Miss Clara Chapman to the piano, and walked to the rear of the hall. Still the guests did not understand, but when the beautiful wedding march came from the piano they knew what was about to take place. The contracting parties then walked to the front of the hall where the ceremony was performed by Rev. H. W. Lowry, of the Presbyterian church of Wellsville. The bride was arrayed in spotless white and the groom wore conventional black. They received the hearty congratulations of their friends.

EAST LIVERPOOL O., MONDAY, NOV. 23

The law does not allow a session of the legislature next year, but that will not prevent all the statesmen and their wives from having a very pleasant meeting in Columbus the first week in January.

The same man is president and the same congress will make laws, but there are several hundred thousand more men employed today than were working this time last year. That's the effect of confidence.

Now that the Republican party will soon be in power, Hawaii is preparing to ask annexation to the United States. Good. Let her come in. There is no good reason why the doctrine of freedom should not spread out into the Pacific.

The selection of a United States senator is a matter so important that the will of the people should be followed, and there can be no expression of that will under the system so closely observed for so long in this state. Give the primary system a chance.

The proposition to hold the spring primaries under the Australian ballot law is meeting with general approval in all parts of the county. Let it be done. There is no good reason why honesty should not be a part of the nomination as it is of the election.

When from some cause, seldom investigated, a factory shuts down, the Democratic press goes into the wildest ecstasies of delight, as though the idleness of workmen was a great blessing to the nation. A little evidence of their boasted patriotism, perhaps.

One redeeming feature of the Dingley bill is the manner in which it deals with wool. It provides for the restoration of 60 per cent of the McKinley duty. If it did as well by crockery, Columbiana county would have no word of protest against the revenue measure.

It is safe to assert that no man can stand well with the American people who is supported by the principles of Altgeld, Tillman and Jones. If the Democratic party expects to figure in the future of this country, it must eliminate these obnoxious leaders before the opening of the next campaign.

If Major McKinley desires it, and Mr. Hanna will accept the position, why should he not be secretary of the treasury? What possible excuse is there for all this howling from the Bryanite press? Judging from the manner in which they observe it, one would imagine it was a great crime to hold a cabinet position.

ALREADY some of the more enterprising members of the next congress are discussing the subject of currency reform. They are premature. Better spend a few months providing for a change in the duties on imports before turning to a minor matter. Strike at the root of the evil of hard times, don't begin half way up the trunk.

A RIGHT START.

The authoritative announcement that Major and Mrs. McKinley will allow no wine in the White House will be heard with pleasure by the millions of Americans who believe the chief executive of their great nation should be a moral man and his home the seat of morality. It will also serve to disprove a campaign lie, widely circulated during the late campaign by the Prohibition party. If Mrs. McKinley had arrayed herself in finery purchased with the rent money from a saloon, it is scarcely probable that the first expressed intention, in connection with the high position to which her husband has been called, would be in direct opposition to the traffic which she was charged with fostering and supporting. The lady who will preside in the White House is an honest, conscientious Christian, and those who know her best would expect nothing less than the banishment of all intoxicants from her home. She could not be as she has always been if she allowed one drop of the stuff within its walls.

JOSEPH BROS.

JOAN OF ARC.

Her Faith in Her Mission Overcame All Obstacles Before the King.

Her conviction was so strong that it gained the sympathy of the poor about her. To these humble beings, for whom everything is difficulty and impossibility in life, imagination opens a rich field, where all dreams seem credible. They believed the dream of Joan and lent their aid to the accomplishment of her miracle. This help and complicity of the people she was to find everywhere on her road. The king and the nobles accepted her because she served their purpose; the people believed in her and lent her strength. Thus from the first step of her undertaking her situation was clearly outlined, as it was to be to the end—to martyrdom. The poor people gave from their poverty to buy her a horse and vestments of war, and a squire, Jean de Metz, won by the popular enthusiasm, offered to accompany her with a few men. They set out for Chinon, where the court was assembled.

The way was long and beset with danger, but Joan upheld the courage of her companions. "Fear nothing," she said. "The Lord God has chosen my route; my brothers in paradise guide me on the way." And in safety they arrived at Chinon. There new obstacles arose. It was difficult to obtain access to the king, jealously guarded from all outside influence by his favorite, La Tremouille. But, as in a fairy tale, doors were opened, walls fell before her magic, and one evening the young peasant entered the great hall where, among the courtiers, disguised in a modest costume, stood the king, whom she had never seen. Without hesitation she walked straight to the king and, falling on her knees, proffered her request with so much grace and ardor that Charles VII was moved.

But imposture, witchcraft even, was suspected, and before a decision was arrived at learned doctors and ecclesiastics were called on to examine her and scrutinize her conscience. To all the subtleties of her examiners she answered with so much simplicity, so much profundity of good sense, that they were confounded. "There is more in the book of God than in yours," she said, and added, "I know not a from b, but I am sent of the Lord God."

A Carlyle Anecdote.

A Scotch visitor to the Carlyles in Cheyne row was much struck with the soundproof room which the sage had contrived for himself in the attic, lighted from the top, and where no sight or sound from outside could penetrate. "My certes, this is fine," cried the old friend, with unconscious sarcasm. "Here ye may write and study all the rest of your life, and no human being be one bit the wiser."—Household Words.

Expert Opinion.

The white gull, circling high in the air over the sand dunes along the lonely shore of the lake, looked with pitying contempt at the wreck of the flying machine far below.

"In my opinion," said the bird, "no inventor will ever hatch a real flying machine out of his head. The human skull is too thick."—Chicago Tribune.

POOR MRS. MAYBRICK.

Noted Prisoner a Mental and Physical Wreck.

LIKELY TO DIE BEFORE A YEAR.

Moved About From Prison to Prison by the English Authorities to Prevent Her Growing Mad—Oscar Wilde's Mind and Health Also Failing.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—From a high official connected with her majesty's prison at Wormwood Scrubs, your correspondent is furnished with the following account of the prisoner Mrs. Maybrick and Oscar Wilde:

"For any one who knew Mrs. Maybrick, as I did, before her incarceration, she would not now be recognized. She is a complete mental and physical wreck. I wish to say right here, that this condition is not due to prison treatment, but is the direct result of confinement and mental worry. While she is not insane her condition borders closely upon it. She has not been at Wormwood Scrubs for many months, but is now in the smaller prison at Aylesbury, in Buckinghamshire. It is so that prisoners in her mental state require as much change as is consistent with prison regulations, and for this reason she has been an inmate of so many penal institutions.

"While at Wormwood Scrubs she was in the hospital for nine months in the year and her health has demanded little treatment at Aylesbury. She has grown thin and her cheekbones protrude in a manner most unpleasant to see. Her complexion is ghastly and her eyes have a haunted look. She has all the cunning of an insane person. This is shown by the fact that she has twice endeavored to commit suicide, once nearly successfully, despite the strict and searching watch to which she is constantly subjected. One of these attempts was evidently made in an endeavor to convince the doctors that she was suffering from internal hemorrhage, and went too far. She subsequently made the same attempt and very nearly succeeded. The other attempt was by means of strangulation. Since these attempts the watch to which she has been subjected precludes another such repetition.

"In talking with her she once said to me: 'I deserve all I have got. She was sincere, but her mental condition at the time was such that I did not attach much importance to her remarks. However, that may be, she was not, in my opinion, ever proven guilty. I am firmly of the belief that she will not survive another year of prison life. She has now been in confinement since July, 1889. Ordinarily imprisonment for life means 20 years, there being but few instances where prisoners have been confined on a life sentence after that period, unless some new and pointed facts in relation to their guilt have come to light in the interim. I also think that have come from America and elsewhere, and which have been in the nature of correcting the home office, have operated against her and I also believe that she will be set at liberty within a year."

The official was also asked regarding Oscar Wilde. Said he:

"Wilde was also removed from the Scrubs a short time ago. He is now at Reading. His health is also wretched and he seems aged and broken. He has spent much time in the hospital, and, like Mrs. Maybrick, has been frequently transferred and for the same reason. While at Wormwood Scrubs he was a model prisoner, so far as complying with the regulations was concerned, but his work was done in a perfunctory manner. I must decline to say at what labor he was employed. Like Mrs. Maybrick I do not think he would survive another year of prison life, but, fortunately for him, his sentence expires the last of March. Personally, I do not believe that any petitions for his release will be granted."

VICTORY FOR THE MINERS.

Operators in Eastern Ohio Consent to Resume the 61-Cent Rate.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 23.—M. D. Hatchford, state president of the United Mine Workers of America, has notified the national officers in this city that he has succeeded in inducing the operators in Eastern Ohio to resume the 61-cent rate. Under this arrangement all of the mines along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio, from Bellaire as far west as Glenoe, opened today.

About 500 miners are affected. They have stood out against the 45-cent rate urged as a result of the recent joint conference, on the ground that the mines in that section did not compete with Pittsburgh.

It is expected that the action of the Eastern Ohio operators will have its influence on the Jackson field, though the Southern Ohio miners are opposed to any action which will place them on a different footing from that which exists in the Hocking Valley. The state officials believe that the 61-cent rate will soon be extended to that district, as the operators in that district will hardly care to hold out much longer when all the other fields have started at 61 cents.

Practically the only differences which exist at this time are those between large and small operators regarding alleged discrimination in the matter of cars in favor of the former.

MAY FIGHT THE STEEL POOL.

The Wire Nail Trust Finally Breaks Up, but May Combine Again.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—The news from Chicago of the collapse of the wire nail trust was not surprising to some of the manufacturers in this city. Ten days ago it was predicted that the trust would cut the price from $2.60 to $1.75 a keg to meet the competition of outside manufacturers who could not be bought up by the pool. A representative of the American Wireworks company, one of the Cleveland concerns which has been controlled by the trust, said that his company received notice a month ago that the payment of subsidies would stop on the 24th of this month.

In consequence the company had arranged to start 25 machines manufacturing nails on the 20th of the month. This manufacturer declared that the buying up of competitors had become too expensive, and the trust was forced to quit. It is now predicted that the nail manufacturers who have been released from the trust agreement will combine to make war upon the steel pool, which has been charging discriminating prices for billets to wire manufacturers who are outside of the influence of the pool.

A VERY OLD EGG INDEED.

A Kenton Doctor Showing One Laid 40 Years Ago.

KENTON, O., Nov. 23.—Dr. C. D. McCoy is exhibiting an egg which he says is 40 years of age. It weighs 281 grains, while a sound one weighs 1,100 grains. It was brought to his office by Mrs. Norman Wall of Silvercreek, who tells the following story:

Forty years ago her husband built his house. He began it in the fall and finished it in the spring. Last week a large piece of plastering fell from the wall, and Mr. Norman upon going to repair the damage discovered a nest full of eggs, which had lain securely hidden and protected for the last 40 years.

Their Pie Poisoned.

ABERDEEN, O., Nov. 23.—John Wright and his family of five are dangerously ill, the result of Paris green poisoning. Shortly after eating a hearty dinner, with pumpkin pie for desert, they were taken with violent pains in the stomach. Dr. Willis was called and administered antidotes. It is thought the two younger children, aged 4 and 6, will not recover. Paris green was sprinkled around in the cellar where the pumpkins were kept, and must have in some way been transferred to the inside of the pumpkin.

Crazed Over His Child's Death.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 23.—A child of Joseph Emmett, a wealthy farmer residing near Union Mills, died of diphtheria, and Emmett came to this city to secure a coffin. On his way home he became deranged over his sorrow. Meeting Edward Jones, a neighbor, he attempted to shoot him. Emmett was arrested and brought to the city, where his condition was discovered. While his child's funeral was in progress Emmett was being tried for lunacy. He will be taken to the Athens asylum.

Buying Up Oil Property.

LIMA, O., Nov. 23.—The Dietrich syndicate, of which E. C. Benedict, President Cleveland's close friend, is president, has just closed a deal by which it acquires possession of all property of the Ohio and Indiana Natural Gas company. The purchase includes the plants at Lima, Dayton, Piqua, Sidney and Wapakoneta, O., and in many towns in Indiana, and several millions of dollars are involved.

DUE TO CIVIL SERVICE.

Morton Saved Cash by Having Competent Men.

OVER $2,000,000 HAS NOT BEEN USED

By the Department of Agriculture Out of the Appropriations Made by Congress—The Secretary Gives Some Points on the Condition of Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Secretary Morton, in his fourth annual report just made public, shows that with $280,000, which may be saved from the appropriations for the current fiscal year, there will have been covered back into the treasury since March 7, 1893, over $2,000,000 out of total appropriations of $11,179,455.45.

That this great economy was effected without any loss of efficiency he attributes in a large degree to the improvement in the personnel of the force under civil service rules, which he declares to be "absolutely indispensable to the maintenance of an economic and efficient administration of the public service."

To complete "the already almost perfect system of civil service" in his department the secretary recommends the appointment of a permanent director in charge of bureaus and scientific investigations. The chiefs of scientific bureaus and their assistants, he declares, are not adequately compensated, and strongly recommends that the salaries of this class of employees be increased.

The inspection of animals intended for food is treated of at length, and stress is laid upon the increased efficiency of the work due to the extension of civil service rules, which has been very rapid in this service.

The total number of antemortem inspections of cattle, sheep, calves and hogs during the year was 35,917,479, an increase over the previous year of over 50 per cent. The total number of post-mortem inspections was 23,164,558, an increase of 25 per cent. The total number of abattoirs under inspection in 1896 was 102 in 35 cities, in 1892 there were but 28 in 12 cities.

For the sake of economy the exports of microscopically inspected pork to countries not exacting such inspection have been greatly discouraged. The total amount thus inspected was in round numbers 23,000,000, of which 21,500,000 pounds went to countries requiring inspection.

Clearances were issued to 819 vessels carrying cattle and sheep. Of cattle there were tagged for export 377,639 and 422,663 inspected sheep were exported. The percentage of loss in transit was considerably less than ever before.

Mr. Morton urges strongly that government inspection should be extended to all animals intended for human food, whether for consumption in the United States or abroad.

The cattle and meat trade of Great Britain is reviewed at length. Of live meat arriving in the United Kingdom during the first six months of 1896, the United States supplied 75 per cent of the cattle and 45 per cent of sheep. The Glasgow market is especially recommended. The report shows a steadily increasing demand in England for American horses.

Reviewing the work of the weather bureau special stress is laid upon the value of the many timely storm warnings, which have been issued by the bureau and have resulted in the protection from loss or damage of many millions of dollars worth of property, to say nothing of the many lives saved from impending danger. An increase in the percentage of verifications is noted.

The secretary again takes occasion to express his opposition to the gratuitous distribution of seeds and to express the hope that the practice will be discontinued.

The work of the experiment stations is reviewed at some length. He says that 72 per cent of the farms in the United States occupied by their owners are absolutely free from mortgages or other encumbrances. The secretary refutes the idea prevailing that the farms of the west and south are more heavily burdened with mortgages than those of the east and northeast.

States along the North Atlantic, he says, are heavily incumbered with farm mortgages, and New Jersey carries a debt of this kind greater in proportion to its farm valuations than any state in the Union. The frequent claim that the farmers are almost universally in debt, despondent and suffering, he declares to be without foundation, a belittlement of agriculture, and an indignity to every intelligent and practical farmer. The farmers are not mendicants nor wards of the government to be treated to annuities, but the representatives of the oldest, most honorable, most essential occupation of the human race, upon which all other vocations depend for subsistence and prosperity.

Referring to the stress of competition which the American farmer is compelled to endure, Mr. Morton calls attention to the nearly 2,000,000 of farms of 30 acres each given away by the government under the homestead act of 1862, during the past 30 years, and to the amount donated under the timber culture law, equivalent to over 550,000 more farms of the same size. The products of land long tilled and rendered partially infertile could not, of course, enhance in value and sell in competition with virgin soil donated by the government.

Referring to the impression that greater rates of interest are charged for money loaned on farms than for that loaned on other kinds of real estate, Secretary Morton states that the rate of interest charged on mortgages upon residence property other than farms averages eighty-four hundredths of one per cent less than the rate of interest charged upon farm loans.

During the fiscal year just ended the export products of American farms aggregated $670,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over the preceding year. The largest market for our products, admitted to be the home market, but the export trade is the regulator, the balance wheel for domestic trade.

Secretary Morton asks if a nation which, like the United States, possesses the greatest power and facilities for producing and manufacturing things which the world demands, is not destined to monopolize the markets of the globe. With most favorable conditions for varied and successful agriculture and the lightest burden of national taxation, what country, he asks, can compete with this in developing the best results of human toil with a minimum of labor-saving contrivances applied to nearly every avenue of production, the wages paid in the United States in the production of wheat and cotton, for instance, are 50 to 100 per cent higher than in the countries with which we compete, so the wages paid in manufactures from metals are from 25 to 100 per cent higher than the wages paid workers in the same industries by other nations.

Under the foregoing conditions about 1,700,000 laborers on American farms are constantly employed in developing agricultural products for exportation.

At the same time, with a rapidly increasing export of manufactured articles from the United States, the number of laborers engaged in mechanical occupations, who must depend for their steady employment upon the demand which the world makes for American goods, is constantly increasing. It is, he concludes, probably quite safe to declare that at least 2,000,000 of American workmen on farms and in factories, subsist almost wholly upon employment based upon foreign demand for American commodities, which is constantly growing.

It is reported that the princess was eccentric to the degree of being mentally unbalanced, that she often visited Paris, where she occupied a simple small pied-a-terre.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, NOV. 23.

THE law does not allow a session of the legislature next year, but that will not prevent all the statesmen and their wives from having a very pleasant meeting in Columbus the first week in January.

THE same man is president and the same congress will make laws, but there are several hundred thousand more men employed today than were working this time last year. That's the effect of confidence.

NOW that the Republican party will soon be in power, Hawaii is preparing to ask annexation to the United States. Good. Let her come in. There is no good reason why the doctrine of freedom should not spread out into the Pacific.

THE selection of a United States senator is a matter so important that the will of the people should be followed, and there can be no expression of that will under the system so closely observed for so long in this state. Give the primary system a chance.

THE proposition to hold the spring primaries under the Australian ballot law is meeting with general approval in all parts of the county. Let it be done. There is no good reason why honesty should not be a part of the nomination as it is of the election.

WHEN from some cause, seldom investigated, a factory shuts down, the Democratic press goes into the wildest ecstasies of delight, as though the idleness of workmen was a great blessing to the nation. A little evidence of their boasted patriotism, perhaps.

ONE redeeming feature of the Dingley bill is the manner in which it deals with wool. It provides for the restoration of 60 per cent of the McKinley duty. If it did as well by crockery, Columbiana county would have no word of protest against the revenue measure.

IT is safe to assert that no man can stand well with the American people who is supported by the principles of Altdorf, Tillman and Jones. If the Democratic party expects to figure in the future of this country, it must eliminate these obnoxious leaders before the opening of the next campaign.

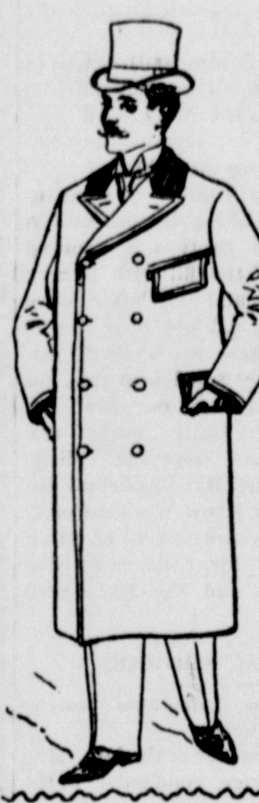

IF Major McKinley desires it, and Mr. Hanna will accept the position, why should he not be secretary of the treasury? What possible excuse is there for all this howling from the Bryanite press? Judging from the manner in which they observe it, one would imagine it was a great crime to hold a cabinet position.

ALREADY some of the more enterprising members of the next congress are discussing the subject of currency reform. They are premature. Better spend a few months providing for a change in the duties on imports before turning to a minor matter. Strike at the root of the evil of hard times, don't begin half way up the trunk.

A RIGHT START.

The authoritative announcement that Major and Mrs. McKinley will allow no wine in the White House will be heard with pleasure by the millions of Americans who believe the chief executive of their great nation should be a moral man and his home the seat of morality. It will also serve to disprove a campaign lie, widely circulated during the late campaign by the Prohibition party. If Mrs. McKinley had arrayed herself in finery purchased with the rent money from a saloon, it is scarcely probable that the first expressed intention, in connection with the high position to which her husband has been called, would be in direct opposition to the traffic which she was charged with fostering and supporting. The lady who will reside in the White House is an honest, conscientious Christian, and those who know her best would expect nothing less than the banishment of all intoxicants from her home. She could not be as she has always been if she allowed one drop of the stuff within its walls.

JOSEPH BROS.

JOAN OF ARC.

Her Faith in Her Mission Overcame All Obstacles Before the King.

Her conviction was so strong that it gained the sympathy of the poor about her. To these humble beings, for whom everything is difficulty and impossibility in life, imagination opens a rich field, where all dreams seem credible. They believed the dream of Joan and lent their aid to the accomplishment of her miracle. This help and complicity of the people she was to find everywhere on her road. The king and the nobles accepted her because she served their purpose; the people believed in her and lent her strength. Thus from the first step of her undertaking her situation was clearly outlined, as it was to be to the end—to martyrdom. The poor people gave from their poverty to buy her a horse and vestments of war, and a squire, Jean de Metz, won by the popular enthusiasm, offered to accompany her with a few men. They set out for Chinon, where the court was assembled.

The way was long and beset with danger, but Joan upheld the courage of her companions. "Fear nothing," she said. "The Lord God has chosen my route; my brothers in paradise guide me on the way." And in safety they arrived at Chinon. There new obstacles arose. It was difficult to obtain access to the king, jealously guarded from all outside influence by his favorite, La Tremoille. But, as in a fairy tale, doors were opened, walls fell before her magic, and one evening the young peasant entered the great hall where, among the courtiers, disguised in a modest costume, stood the king, whom she had never seen. Without hesitation she walked straight to the king and, following on her knees, proffered her request with so much grace and ardor that Charles VII was moved.

But imposture, witchcraft even, was suspected, and before a decision was arrived at learned doctors and ecclesiastics were called on to examine her and scrutinize her conscience. To all the subtleties of her examiners she answered with so much simplicity, so much profundity of good sense, that they were confounded. "There is more in the book of God than in yours," she said, and added, "I know not a from b, but I am sent of the Lord God."—"The National Hero of France," by Maurice Boutet de Monvel, in Century.

A Carlyle Anecdote.

A Scotch visitor to the Carlyles in Cheyne row was much struck with the soundproof room which the sage had contrived for himself in the attic, lighted from the top, and where no sight or sound from outside could penetrate. "My certes, this is fine," cried the old friend, with unconscious sarcasm. "Here ye may write and study all the rest of your life, and no human being be one bit the wiser."—Household Words.

Expert Opinion.

The white gull, circling high in the air over the sand dunes along the lonely shore of the lake, looked with pitying contempt at the wreck of the flying machine far below.

"In my opinion," said the bird, "no inventor will ever hatch a real flying machine out of his head. The human skull is too thick."—Chicago Tribune.

POOR MRS. MAYBRICK.

Noted Prisoner a Mental and Physical Wreck.

LIKELY TO DIE BEFORE A YEAR.

Moved About From Prison to Prison by the English Authorities to Prevent Her Growing Mad—Oscar Wilde's Mind and Health Also Failing.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—From a high official connected with her majesty's prison at Wormwood Scrubbs, your correspondent is furnished with the following account of the prisoners Mrs. Maybrick and Oscar Wilde:

"For any one who knew Mrs. Maybrick, as I did, before her incarceration, she would not now be recognized. She is a complete mental and physical wreck. I wish to say right here, that this condition is not due to prison treatment, but is the direct result of confinement and mental worry. While she is not insane her condition borders closely upon it. She has not been at Wormwood Scrubbs for many months, but is now in the smaller prison at Aylesbury, in Buckinghamshire. It is in that prison in her mental state require as much change as is consistent with prison regulations, and for this reason she has been an inmate of so many penal institutions.

"While at Wormwood Scrubbs she was in the hospital for nine months in the year and her health has demanded like treatment at Aylesbury. She has grown thin and her cheekbones protrude in a manner most unpleasant to see. Her complexion is ghastly and her eyes have a haunted look. She has all the cunning of an insane person. This is shown by the fact that she has twice endeavored to commit suicide, once nearly successfully, despite the strict and searching watch to which she is constantly subjected. One of these attempts was evidently made in an endeavor to convince the doctors that she was suffering from internal hemorrhage, and went too far. She subsequently made the same attempt and very nearly succeeded. The other attempt was by means of strangulation. Since these attempts the watch to which she has been subjected precludes another such repetition.

"In talking with her she once said to me: 'I deserve all I have got.' She was sincere, but her mental condition at the time was such that I did not attach much importance to her remarks. However, that may be, she was not, in my opinion, ever proven guilty. I am firmly of the belief that she will not survive another year of prison life. She has now been in confinement since July, 1893. Ordinarily imprisonment for life means 20 years, there being but few instances where prisoners have been confined on a life sentence after that period, unless some new and pointed facts in relation to their guilt have come to light in the interim. I also think that the efforts to secure her release that have come from America and elsewhere, and which have been in the nature of co-acting the home office, have operated against her and I also believe that she will be set at liberty within a year."

The official was also asked regarding Oscar Wilde. Said he:

"Wilde was also removed from the Scrubbs a short time ago. He is now at Reading. His health is also wretched and he seems aged and broken. He has spent much time in the hospital, and, like Mrs. Maybrick, has been frequently transferred and for the same reason. While at Wormwood Scrubbs he was a life prisoner, so far as complying with the regulations was concerned, but his work was done in a perfunctory manner. I must decline to say at what labor he was employed. Like Mrs. Maybrick I do not think he would survive another year of prison life, but, fortunately for him, his sentence expires the last of March. Personally, I do not believe that any petitions for his release will be granted."

VICTORY FOR THE MINERS.

Operators in Eastern Ohio Consent to Resume the 61-Cent Rate.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 23.—M. D. Rathford, state president of the United Mine Workers of America, has notified the national officers in this city that he has succeeded in inducing the operators in Eastern Ohio to resume the 61-cent rate. Under this arrangement all of the mines along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio, from Bellaire as far west as Glencoe, opened today.

About 500 miners are affected. They have stood out against the 45-cent rate urged as a result of the recent joint conference, on the ground that the mines in that section did not compete with Pittsburgh.

It is expected that the action of the Eastern Ohio operators will have its influence on the Jackson field, though the Southern Ohio miners are opposed to any action which will place them on a different footing from that which exists in the Hocking Valley. The state officials believe that the 61-cent rate will soon be extended to the Hocking valley, as the operators in that district will hardly care to hold out much longer when all the other fields have started at 61 cents.

Practically the only differences which exist at this time are those between large and small operators regarding alleged discrimination in the matter of cars in favor of the former.

MAY FIGHT THE STEEL POOL.

The Wire Nail Trust Finally Breaks Up, but May Combine Again.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—The news from Chicago of the collapse of the wire nail trust was not surprising to some of the manufacturers in this city. Ten days ago it was predicted that the trust would cut the price from $2.60 to $1.75 a keg to meet the competition of outside manufacturers who could not be bought up by the pool. A representative of the American Wireworks company, one of the Cleveland concerns which has been controlled by the trust, said that his company received notice a month ago that the payment of subsidies would stop on the 24th of this month.

In consequence the company had arranged to start 25 machines manufacturing nails on the 25th of the month. This manufacturer declared that the buying up of competitors had become too expensive, and the trust was forced to quit. It is now predicted that the nail manufacturers who have been released from the trust agreement will combine to make war upon the steel pool, which has been charging discriminatory prices for billets to wire manufacturers who are outside of the influence of the pool.

A VERY OLD EGG INDEED.

A Kenton Doctor Showing One Laid 40 Years Ago.

KENTON, O., Nov. 23.—Dr. C. D. McCoy is exhibiting an egg which he says is 40 years of age. It weighs 281 grains, while a sound one weighs 1,100 grains. It was brought to his office by Mrs. Norman Wall of Silvercreek, who tells the following story:

Forty years ago her husband built his house. He began it in the fall and finished it in the spring. Last week a large piece of plastering fell from the wall, and Mr. Norman upon going to repair the damage discovered a nest full of eggs, which had lain securely hidden and protected for the last 40 years.

Their Pie Poisoned.

ABERDEEN, O., Nov. 23.—John Wright and his family of five are dangerously ill, the result of paris green poisoning. Shortly after eating a hearty dinner, with pumpkin pie for desert, they were taken with violent pains in the stomach. Dr. Willis was called and administered antidotes. It is thought the two younger children, aged 4 and 6, will not recover. Paris green was sprinkled around in the cellar where the pumpkins were kept, and must have in some way been transferred to the inside of the pumpkin.

Crazed Over His Child's Death.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 23.—A child of Joseph Emmett, a wealthy farmer residing near Union Mills, died of diphtheria, and Emmett came to this city to secure a coffin. On his way home he became deranged over his sorrow. Meeting Edward Jones, a neighbor, he attempted to shoot him. Emmett was arrested and brought to the city, where his condition was discovered. While his child's funeral was in progress Emmett was being tried for lunacy. He will be taken to the Athens asylum.

Buying Up Oil Property.

LIMA, O., Nov. 23.—The Dietrich syndicate, of which E. C. Benedict, President Cleveland's close friend, is president, has just closed a deal by which it acquires possession of all property of the Ohio and Indiana Natural Gas company. The purchase includes the plants at Lima, Dayton, Piqua, Sidney and Wapakoneta, O., and in many towns in Indiana, and several millions of dollars are involved.

DUE TO CIVIL SERVICE.

Morton Saved Cash by Having Competent Men.

OVER $2,000,000 HAS NOT BEEN USED

By the Department of Agriculture Out of the Appropriations Made by Congress. The Secretary Gives Some Points on the Condition of Farmers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Secretary Morton, in his fourth annual report just made public, shows that with $280,000, which may be saved from the appropriations for the current fiscal year, there will have been covered back into the treasury since March 7, 1893, over $2,000,000 out of total appropriations of $11,179,455.45.

That this great economy was effected without any loss of efficiency he attributes in a large degree to the force under civil service rules, which he declares to be "absolutely indispensable to the maintenance of an economic and efficient administration of the public service."

To complete "the already almost perfect system of civil service" in his department the secretary recommends the appointment of a permanent director in charge of bureaus and scientific investigations. The chiefs of scientific bureaus and their assistants, he declares, are not adequately compensated, and strongly recommends that the salaries of this class of employees be increased.

The inspection of animals intended for food is treated at length, and stress is laid upon the increased efficiency of the work due to the extension of civil service rules, which has been very rapid in this service.

The total number of antemortem inspections of cattle, sheep, calves and hogs during the year was 35,917,479, an increase over the previous year of over 50 per cent. The total number of post-mortem inspections was 23,164,858, an increase of 25 per cent. The total number of abattoirs under inspection in 1896 was 102 in 26 cities, in 1892 there were but 28 in 12 cities.

For the sake of economy the exports of microscopically inspected pork to countries not exacting such inspection have been greatly discouraged. The total amount thus inspected was in round numbers 23,606,790, of which 21,500,000 pounds went to countries requiring inspection.

Cleanances were issued to 819 vessels carrying cattle and sheep. Of cattle there were tagged for export 377,639 and 422,663 inspected sheep were exported. The percentage of loss in transit was considerably less than ever before.

Mr. Morton urges strongly that government inspection should be extended to all animals intended for human food, whether for consumption in the United States or abroad.

The cattle and meat trade of Great Britain is reviewed at length. Of live meat arriving in the United Kingdom during the first six months of 1896, the United States supplied 75 per cent of the cattle and 45 per cent of sheep. The Glasgow market is especially recommended. The report shows a steadily increasing demand in England for American horse.

Reviewing the work of the weather bureau special stress is laid upon the value of the many timely storm warnings, which have been issued by the bureau and have resulted in the protection from loss or damage of many millions of dollars worth of property, to say nothing of the many lives saved from impending danger. An increase in the percentage of verifications is noted.

The secretary again takes occasion to express his opposition to the gratuitous distribution of seeds and to express the hope that the practice will be discontinued.

The work of the experiment stations is reviewed at some length. He says that 72 per cent of the farms in the United States occupied by their owners are absolutely free from mortgages or other incumbrances. The secretary refutes the idea prevailing that the farms of the west and south are more heavily burdened with mortgages than those of the east and northeast. States along the North Atlantic, he says, are quite heavily incumbered with farm mortgages, and New Jersey carries a debt of this kind greater in proportion to its farm valuations than any state in the Union. The frequent claim that the farmers are almost universally in debt, despondent and suffering, he declares to be without foundation, a belittlement of agriculture, and an indignity to every intelligent and practical farmer. The farmers are not mendicants nor wards of the government to be treated to annuities, but the representatives of the oldest, most honorable, most essential occupation of the human race, upon which all other vocations depend for subsistence and prosperity.

perity. Referring to the stress of competition which the American farmer is compelled to endure, Mr. Morton calls attention to the nearly 3,000,000 of farms of 80 acres each given away by the government under the homestead act of 1880, during the past 30 years, and to the amount donated under the timber culture law, equivalent to over 550,000 more farms of the same size. The products of land long tilted and rendered partially infertile could not, of course, enhance in value and sell in competition with virgin soil donated by the government.

Referring to the impression that greater rates of interest are charged for money loaned on farms than for that loaned on other kinds of real estate, Secretary Morton states that the rate of interest charged on mortgages upon residence property other than farms averages eighty-four hundredths of one per cent less than the rate of interest charged upon farm loans.

During the fiscal year just ended the export products of American farms aggregated $670,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over the preceding year. The largest market for our products, admitted to be the home market, but the export trade is the regulator, the balance wheel for domestic trade.

Secretary Morton asks if a nation which, like the United States, possesses the greatest power and facilities for producing and manufacturing things which the world demands, is not destined to monopolize the markets of the globe. With most favorable conditions for varied and successful agriculture and the lightest burden of national taxation, what country, he asks, can compete with this in developing the best results of human toil with a minimum of human effort? With our wonderful labor-saving contrivances applied to nearly every avenue of production, the wages paid in the United States in the production of wheat and cotton, for instance, are 50 to 100 per cent higher than in the countries with which we compete, so the wages paid in manufactures from metals are from 25 to 100 per cent higher than the wages paid workers in the same industries by other nations.

Under the foregoing conditions about 1,700,000 laborers on American farms are constantly employed in developing agricultural products for exportation.

At the same time, with a rapidly increasing export of manufactured articles from the United States, the number of laborers engaged in mechanical occupations, who must depend for their steady employment upon the demand which the world makes for American goods, is constantly increasing. It is, he concludes, probably quite safe to declare that at least 2,000,000 of American workmen on farms and in factories, subsist almost wholly upon employment abroad foreign demand for American commodities, which is constantly growing.

WEYLER PUFFED UP.

Christmas Marks the Rebels' Doom He Says.

DECLARES MACEO WON'T FIGHT.

He Claims to Be Highly Pleased With the Result of His Present Campaign in Pinar del Rio—Praises the Deportment of His Troops.

HAYANA, Nov. 23.—The first definite announcement from General Weyler since he has taken the field in person, in Pinar del Rio was secured by the correspondent of El Liberal de Madrid in an interview with the captain general at Jaca near San Cristobal. General Weyler asserted that he was highly pleased with the results of his campaign in Pinar del Rio so far. He announced that he expected to remain to conduct active operations in Pinar del Rio province for 15 or 20 days longer, adding:

"Wait until Christmas. By that date we shall have dealt a mortal blow to the revolution."

When asked about the whereabouts of Antonio Maceo, General Weyler replied that he was southwest of the railway line and that he always avoided an advantageous position.

In closing the interview General Weyler praised the deportment of the troops in his command. He also expressed delight with the success of Spain's internal loan.

GRANT'S HONEST CONFESSION.

He Acknowledges He Would Like to Be Secretary of War.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—Colonel Fred D. Grant paid a visit to Chairman Hanna Sunday, having stopped on his way home from St. Louis, where he attended the reunion of the Army of the Tennessee. Mr. Hanna said there was no political significance in the visit. Colonel Grant went to Canton today to pay his respects to President-elect McKinley.

Colonel Grant said there was nothing political in his visit.

"What about the gossip connecting your name with a cabinet position?" he was asked.

"I have seen it stated in several newspapers that I am to be secretary of war in McKinley's cabinet, but those publications emanate, I am sure, from persons who are not in touch with the president-elect. I would be happy to occupy such a position in the cabinet, but I have not been asked to do so, and I do not know that I shall be. That is all there is to it."

"Did you discuss politics with Mr. Hanna?"

"The only reference to politics was a remark by me to the effect that Mr. Hanna had been slated for the position of secretary of the treasury and I hoped

COLONEL FREDERICK DENT GRANT.

He would get it. To that Mr. Hanna replied that he did not desire a position in the cabinet."

General Nelson A. Miles has arrived in the city. He is staying with friends.

GOVERNOR BRADLEY IS SHY.

Hesitates to Call a Special Session on Account of Senatorship.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 23.—Prominent politicians are visiting Governor Bradley with reference to calling an extra session of the legislature. The state affairs need legislation, but there is a division of opinion as to the effect of an extra session on the senatorship. If no extra session is held Governor Bradley will appoint a successor to Senator Blackburn March 4 to serve till the next legislature is elected.

As the governor is prominently mentioned for the senatorship himself the situation is an embarrassing one to him. There are a half dozen other prominent Republican candidates, and Senator Blackburn will continue the fight to the last, while the friends of Secretary Carlisle are watching the situation. It is the general opinion that there will be an extra session, and that there will be another senatorial fight here this winter.

DETECTIVES WANTED BADLY.

West Virginia Officers Ask For Requisition For the Mount's Killers.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Nov. 23.—Detectives Clark and Bevin were expected here to answer for the killing of Anderson and James Mounts last week while the former were attempting to arrest Anderson Mounts. Owing to the feeling against the officers by the friends of Mounts, neither of them would leave Pineville, Ky., and cross the state line.

It was decided to secure requisition papers at Charleston today on the governor of Kentucky, when the officers will be brought here for a preliminary hearing.

MRS. MCKINLEY STILL IMPROVES.

The Trip to Cleveland Will Not Be Taken This Week.

CANTON, O., Nov. 23.—President-elect McKinley was in his bed Sunday morning when services opened in the First M. E. church. After the services he helped his mother to her carriage and then walked to her own home. Mother McKinley, Miss Helen McKinley and their household went to the home of the major for dinner and spent the afternoon.

Mr. McKinley continues to improve and passed a comfortable day. The major is in the best of health and spirits, and in no hurry, for the change of scene which the trip to Cleveland suggests. That trip will not be made this week. Nor has any definite date been fixed for it. The major took a short drive during the day and shook hands with a number of visitors who called at the house to pay their respects.

SATOLLI PRAISED IRELAND.

He Made No Report of Censure to the Pope, as Reported.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 23.—Owing to the recent reports, charging that Cardinal Satolli's report to the pope contained a censure of Archbishop Ireland, the latter has given extracts of a letter from the cardinal to him, dated Nov. 5, in which Satolli said:

"I wish at once to tell you that I did not fail to speak at length to the holy father of yourself and to narrate to him how sincerely and loyally you are devoted to the holy see and to the person of the holy father himself; with what great zeal and great success you labor incessantly in all things that may be to the advantage of the Catholic church in the United States. I added that your zeal and your success will increase in the future."

In another part of the letter Cardinal Satolli assures him that a bright future is reserved for Bishop Keane, the late rector of the Washington university.

TO REGULATE WHEAT PRICES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—A conference of nations on the subject of the world's wheat market is understood to be desired by Russia, who is believed to be making overtures to the United States, England, the Argentine Republic and Austria, which are the principal wheat growing nations of the world.

The idea suggested is that these nations could fix a price for wheat, to be maintained uniformly through various seasons of over-production and unsatisfactory crops, caused by drought or continual rain, and thus make the principal grain staple upon which the millions of consumers demand for food almost as unchangeable in value as gold itself has become.

The coming envoy will be accredited as a regular minister on the settlement of the dispute between the two countries, as has been arranged through the intervention of the United States. He will also be accredited as minister to France, where Venezuela has long been represented by a consul general.

DROVE FROM INDIANA

The Shultz Family Did Not Come by Rail.

THEY HEARD OF OUR POTTERIES

And Decided This Would Be a Good Place to Live—Came Through in Wagons and Had Many Experiences—A House Soon Rented.

The Shultz family arrived in the city last evening, having come all the way from Indiana in wagons.

There are two brothers and two sisters in the family, and they resided near Evansville. Times were hard, and they heard that East Liverpool was a town where men and women could find employment. They loaded their household effects, or such of them as they desired to bring, on two wagons, and two months ago started for the east. They had but one bed, and the women occupied this while the men slept on the ground, or stood guard. They were often mistaken for gypsies, and were besieged by people who wanted to know all about the future. They had many strange experiences on the way, but arrived here last night at 8 o'clock, weary, although none the worse for the long journey. They had not been in town long until they had rented and moved into the house of George Esenhuth on Avondale street, and by 9 o'clock they were settled. One horse and wagon was sold before the night was over, and they were ready for life in the city. They expect to secure employment, and will remain here.

FELL IN THE RIVER

A Team Dropped Into Fifteen Feet of Water.

HEROIC EFFORTS SAVED THEM

Their Heads Were Held Above the Surface Until the Harness Was Cut and the Horses Released—The Only Loss Is a Load of Coal.

A team of horses struggling in the water attracted a crowd to the foot of Washington street this morning.

Frank Stevenson, the driver, had loaded his wagon at the Foster float, and was shoveling up the coal gathered about the wagon when he called for the horses to turn. They had often obeyed the order without accident on other occasions, but today the turn made was too short. The horses approached the edge of the float, and the wagon toppled over, dragging them after it. The alarm was quickly given, and a number of persons aided in freeing the horses from the wagon. They were in 15 feet of water, but their heads were held above the surface until the harness was cut away. It was then an easy task to get them on dry land. The wagon was taken out later, and found to be uninjured. The only loss was the coal which lies at the bottom of the river. The horses were not hurt, but it was some time before they could be quieted.

THE FAMILY UMBRELLA.

Sir Walter Besant Describes the Real Old Fashioned Kind.

The real old family umbrella has gone out.

Call that slim, stuck up, affected, attenuated thing a family umbrella? writes Sir Walter Besant. Go away. I remember the genuine family umbrella. It was kept in readiness behind every front door. It was a large, portly, heavy instrument. As an emblem of respectability it was highly esteemed in middle class society. It was serviceable as a tent in rainy weather. It could be used as a weapon of offense and defense on occasion.

I have seen a picture of an elderly gentleman keeping off a footpad by means of this lethal umbrella. He made as if he would spear or prod the villain. Why, one prod would alone make a hole of six inches diameter in that murderous carcass. The nurse used to carry it, with difficulty managing the baby and umbrella. It went out to tea with the young ladies. The maid who "fetched" them home took the umbrella with her. It succeeded the lantern and the club formerly carried by the "prentice when he escorted his mistress to the card party after dark. I remember it, I say.

There were three brothers who came to the same school where I was but a tiny little boy. They lived at some distance, and had to pass on their way to school through a stratum of inferior respectability. Every morning brought to these three brothers the delight and the excitement of battle with the boys belonging to that inferior respectability. To the eldest brother, who carried the really important weapon, the umbrella was exactly what his battleship was to the lion heart. So he raised it; so he wielded it; so he swung it; so he laid his enemies low to right and to left of him, before and behind him, while the other two, relying on the books tightly strapped, brought them to bear, with shrewd knocks and thwacks and poundings, on heads and shoulders and ribs.

'Twas a famous family umbrella—green, too, if I remember aright.

"THE VOCAL STUDENT."

Mme. Melba on the Exactions and Rewards of a Musical Career.

Mme. Melba addresses students of music in an instructive, practical paper in The Ladies' Home Journal. She tells in her article on "The Vocal Student" of the necessity of securing a thoroughly competent teacher, of practice, and the care of the health; emphasizes the importance of being trained musicians as well as vocalists, talks of the monetary value of a musical training and of European study. With regard to the monetary rewards of a capable singer Mme. Melba says: "To a girl properly trained and qualified the profession of a vocal teacher is one of the most remunerative. Good teachers are scarce and in great demand, and as the fees are large an excellent income may be obtained. Next comes the career of the church singer. Every church has its choir, and in the majority of cases the soloists composing it are paid, and often well paid. Engagements as a drawing room singer can be secured in large cities when one has talent and faculty, and when the voice is not sufficiently large for its possessor to become a concert singer.

"The fees of the successful concert singer are large; she is constantly in demand; her repertory is of songs, not of entire roles, and is more easily acquired; her expenses are limited to the cost of a few evening gowns, in the place of scores of costumes. For the opera singer there is plenty of hard work, but for that there is the compensation of being associated in many cases with the famous artists of the world, whom to know is a liberal education."

SINGULAR DREAMS.

A MAN WHO HAD THEM ASKS FOR THEIR INTERPRETATION.

Though Very Ill He Learned From Visions That He Would Recover—Dreams of Struggles, and the Next Day He Was Very Sore—On the Sea of Galilee.

Dreams are not without significance, especially to those who have a high set purpose in life. And as this subject is of interest to many I will relate a series of dreams in my own experience to which possibly some one can give a clearer interpretation than I.

Having been taken very ill in winter and this being my second attack, all my friends and associate physicians said I was at death's door and it was not possible for me to recover. It meant but a few hours, or days at the most. I was unconscious at times, but through it all the idea was firmly rooted in my mind that "there is more life for me, and I cannot, I will not go."

There followed four days of complete darkness, and when a little natural sleep came it was accompanied each night for three weeks by a dream of my encounter with some vicious animal—beginning with a bull, then a bear and next a large mastiff. This order never varied. When the bull came toward me, I easily and quickly vaulted the fence as he pinned it below me. In my encounter with the bear I grabbed him by the throat and threw him on his back, thus getting safely away. (Next morning the biceps and supinators of my arm were so sore that they had to be rubbed.) Next the mastiff approached. I quickly grasped him by the larynx till I could get hold of his tongue. This grip seemed to affect the muscles of my wrist and hand alone, which were just as sore and stiff as formerly.

After the expiration of the three weeks I had no dreams whatever for a few nights. When they returned, I became more and more worried, until, after the last one, something said to me: "This is good, not evil. You are surely a conqueror." However, not much physical improvement was visible.

In the next dream I saw a blue and white light growing into a crown, in which the word "Power" in bright letters was inclosed. This seemed to give me hope, also strength and courage, and I felt somewhat better.

Three nights later I dreamed of being on the lake of Galilee, in the boat with Christ and his disciples, and such a picture as lay before me is hard to describe. The disciples seemed agitated, the sea was rough, and the boat frail; yet I was calm. The disciples looked at me and then at the sleeping Christ, but did not speak. I was half reclining, but why so calm I knew not. Presently the spokesman of the group arose and whispered to the rest, and as they all got up he touched Christ and said, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" Christ's face, as he arose and rebuked them, wore an expression of mingled gentleness, sternness and pity. I was thrilled as he held out his hand, with a graceful movement and said, "Peace, be still." Then came a remarkable calm—a beautiful sunset on a sea of glass.

I awoke feeling much better and with strong hope. My improvement was very noticeable from this time forward. Then came a lull, which was followed by dreams of a different character for another period of three weeks. I heard glorious music by a full voiced choir, commencing regularly at sunset and continuing until I was soothed asleep. I felt more vigorous after this experience. Then, for the next three weeks, I saw only a beautiful blue and white light, just as I fell asleep.

As I went about, obliged to mingle in the affairs of daily life, I had no dreams for quite awhile, being somewhat worried by business and other cares. Finally my will again asserted itself. Then began, lasting for three weeks, a series of wonderful texts and sayings, which were given to me by a voice sufficiently audible to arouse me in the morning. They would frequently ring in my ears all day. This seemed to give me power over myself and others. Then I began to get messages and impressions from friends at a distance.

Lastly, approaching my office one morning after leaving the car, I seemed overwhelmed by a condition in which I was very happy and unconscious of my surroundings. When I reached the office, I felt a desire to be alone for a few minutes. I sat down, and my eyes closed, when I saw a beautiful, large star, and while I was looking at it a voice said audibly, seven times, "Let the light of life shine forth in you."

Next morning the same condition came at precisely the same place, lasting until the office was reached. This time I saw a beautiful moon and heard a voice speak the words seven times, "This light of life, so free, is yours." The moon disappeared, as the star had done, after the seventh time. I felt very sleepy and dozed for about three minutes.

It would seem that in these occurrences the regularity of the appearances and of the number of times in each case is worthy of note.—Metaphysical Magazine.

Chinese Ways.

The Chinese are said to be very skillful in telling the time of day by looking into a cat's eyes. When they want to know what o'clock it is, they will run to the nearest cat, open her eyes, and at once tell what time it is. This they do by observing the size of the aperture of the pupil of the eye, which they have discovered is of varying size at different hours of the day, being affected by the position of the sun and the character of light, even when the day is cloudy.—New York Times.

Crime and Cruelty.

Crime is nothing but cruelty, and all cruelty is criminal in its tendencies.

FELL IN THE RIVER

A Team Dropped Into Fifteen Feet of Water.

HEROIC EFFORTS SAVED THEM

Their Heads Were Held Above the Surface Until the Harness Was Cut and the Horses Released—The Only Loss Is a Load of Coal.

A team of horses struggling in the water attracted a crowd to the foot of Washington street this morning.

Frank Stevenson, the driver, had loaded his wagon at the Foster float, and was shoveling up the coal gathered about the wagon when he called for the horses to turn. They had often obeyed the order without accident on other occasions, but today the turn made was too short. The horses approached the edge of the float, and the wagon toppled over, dragging them after it. The alarm was quickly given, and a number of persons aided in freeing the horses from the wagon. They were in 15 feet of water, but their heads were held above the surface until the harness was cut away. It was then an easy task to get them on dry land. The wagon was taken out later, and found to be uninjured. The only loss was the coal which lies at the bottom of the river. The horses were not hurt, but it was some time before they could be quieted.

THE FAMILY UMBRELLA.

Sir Walter Besant Describes the Real Old Fashioned Kind.

The real old family umbrella has gone out.

Call that slim, stuck up, affected, attenuated thing a family umbrella? writes Sir Walter Besant. Go away. I remember the genuine family umbrella. It was kept in readiness behind every front door. It was a large, portly, heavy instrument. As an emblem of respectability it was highly esteemed in middle class society. It was serviceable as a tent in rainy weather. It could be used as a weapon of offense and defense on occasion.

I have seen a picture of an elderly gentleman keeping off a footpad by means of this lethal umbrella. He made as if he would spear or prod the villain. Why, one prod would alone make a hole of six inches diameter in that murderous carcass. The nurse used to carry it, with difficulty managing the baby and umbrella. It went out to tea with the young ladies. The maid who "fetched" them home took the umbrella with her. It succeeded the lantern and the club formerly carried by the 'prentice when he escorted his mistress to the card party after dark. I remember it, I say.

There were three brothers who came to the same school where I was but a tiny little boy. They lived at some distance, and had to pass on their way to school through a stratum of inferior respectability. Every morning brought to these three brothers the delight and the excitement of battle with the boys belonging to that inferior respectability. To the eldest brother, who carried the really important weapon, the umbrella was exactly what his battleaxe was to the lion heart. So he raised it; so he laid his enemies low to right and to left of him, before and behind him, while the other two, relying on the books tightly strapped, brought them to bear, with shrewd knocks and thwacks and poundings, on heads and shoulders and ribs.

"THE VOCAL STUDENT."

Mme. Melba on the Exactions and Rewards of a Musical Career.

Mme. Melba addresses students of music in an instructive, practical paper in the Ladies' Home Journal. She tells in her article on "The Vocal Student" of the necessity of securing a thoroughly competent teacher, of practice, and the care of the health; emphasizes the importance of being trained musicians as well as vocalists, talks of the monetary value of a musical training and of European study. With regard to the monetary rewards of a capable singer Mme. Melba says: "To a girl properly trained and qualified the profession of a vocal teacher is one of the most remunerative. Good teachers are scarce and in great demand, and as the fees are large an excellent income may be obtained. Next comes the career of the church singer. Every church has its choir, and in the majority of cases the soloists composing it are paid, and often well paid. Engagements as a drawing room singer can be secured in large cities when one has talent and faculty, and when the voice is not sufficiently large for its possessor to become a concert singer.

"The fees of the successful concert singer are large; she is constantly in demand; her repertoire is of songs, not of entire roles, and is more easily acquired; her expenses are limited to the cost of a few evening gowns, in the place of scores of costumes. For the opera singer there is plenty of hard work, but for that there is the compensation of being associated in many cases with the famous artists of the world, whom to know is a liberal education."

SINGULAR DREAMS.

A MAN WHO HAD THEM ASKS FOR THEIR INTERPRETATION.

Though Very Ill He Learned From Visions That He Would Recover—Dreams of Struggles, and the Next Day He Was Very Sore—On the Sea of Galilee.

Dreams are not without significance, especially to those who have a high set purpose in life. And as this subject is of interest to many I will relate a series of dreams in my own experience to which possibly some one can give a clearer interpretation than I.

Having been taken very ill in winter and this being my second attack, all my friends and associate physicians said I was at death's door and it was not possible for me to recover. It meant but a few hours, or days at the most. I was unconscious at times, but through it all the idea was firmly rooted in my mind that "there is more life for me, and I cannot, I will not go."

There followed four days of complete darkness, and when a little natural sleep came it was accompanied each night for three weeks by a dream of my encounter with some vicious animal—beginning with a bull, then a bear and next a large mastiff. This order never varied. When the bull came toward me, I easily and quickly vaulted the fence as he pinned it below me. In my encounter with the bear I grabbed him by the throat and threw him on his back, thus getting safely away. (Next morning the biceps and supinators of my arm were so sore that they had to be rubbed.) Next the mastiff approached. I quickly grasped him by the larynx till I could get hold of his tongue. This grip seemed to affect the muscles of my wrist and hand alone, which were just as sore and stiff as formerly.

After the expiration of the three weeks I had no dreams whatever for a few nights. When they returned, I became more and more worried, until, after the last one, something said to me: "This is good, not evil. You are surely a conqueror." However, not much physical improvement was visible.

In the next dream I saw a blue and white light growing into a crown, in which the word "Power" in bright letters was inclosed. This seemed to give me hope, also strength and courage, and I felt somewhat better.

Three nights later I dreamed of being on the lake of Galilee, in the boat with Christ and his disciples, and such a picture as lay before me is hard to describe. The disciples seemed agitated, the sea was rough, and the boat frail; yet I was calm. The disciples looked at me and then at the sleeping Christ, but did not speak. I was half reclining, but why so calm I knew not. Presently the spokesman of the group arose and whispered to the rest, and as they all got up he touched Christ and said, "Master, carest thou not that we perish?" Christ's face, as he arose and rebuked them, wore an expression of mingled gentleness, sternness and pity. I was thrilled as he held out his hand, with a graceful movement and said, "Peace, be still." Then came a remarkable calm—a beautiful sunset on a sea of glass.

I awoke feeling much better and with strong hope. My improvement was very noticeable from this time forward. Then came a lull, which was followed by dreams of a different character for another period of three weeks. I heard glorious music by a full voiced choir, commencing regularly at sunset and continuing until I was soothed asleep. I felt more vigorous after this experience. Then, for the next three weeks, I saw only a beautiful blue and white light, just as I fell asleep.

As I went about, obliged to mingle in the affairs of daily life, I had no dreams for quite awhile, being somewhat worried by business and other cares. Finally my will again asserted itself. Then began, lasting for three weeks, a series of wonderful texts and sayings, which were given to me by a voice sufficiently audible to arouse me in the morning. They would frequently ring in my ears all day. This seemed to give me power over myself and others. Then I began to get messages and impressions from friends at a distance.

Lastly, approaching my office one morning after leaving the car, I seemed overwhelmed by a condition in which I was very happy and unconscious of my surroundings. When I reached the office, I felt a desire to be alone for a few minutes. I sat down, and my eyes closed, when I saw a beautiful, large star, and while I was looking at it a voice said audibly, seven times, "Let the light of life shine forth in you."

Next morning the same condition came at precisely the same place, lasting until the office was reached. This time I saw a beautiful moon and heard a voice speak the words seven times, "This light of life, so free, is yours." The moon disappeared, as the star had done, after the seventh time. I felt very sleepy and dozed for about three minutes.

It would seem that in these occurrences the regularity of the appearances and of the number of times in each case is worthy of note.—Metaphysical Magazine.

Chinese Ways.

The Chinese are said to be very skillful in telling the time of day by looking into a cat's eyes. When they want to know what o'clock it is, they will run to the nearest cat, open her eyes, and at once tell what time it is. This they do by observing the size of the aperture of the pupil of the eye, which they have discovered is of varying size at different hours of the day, being affected by the position of the sun and the character of light, even when the day is cloudy.—New York Times.
